In-house IT Department (Insurance Companies Software Development)

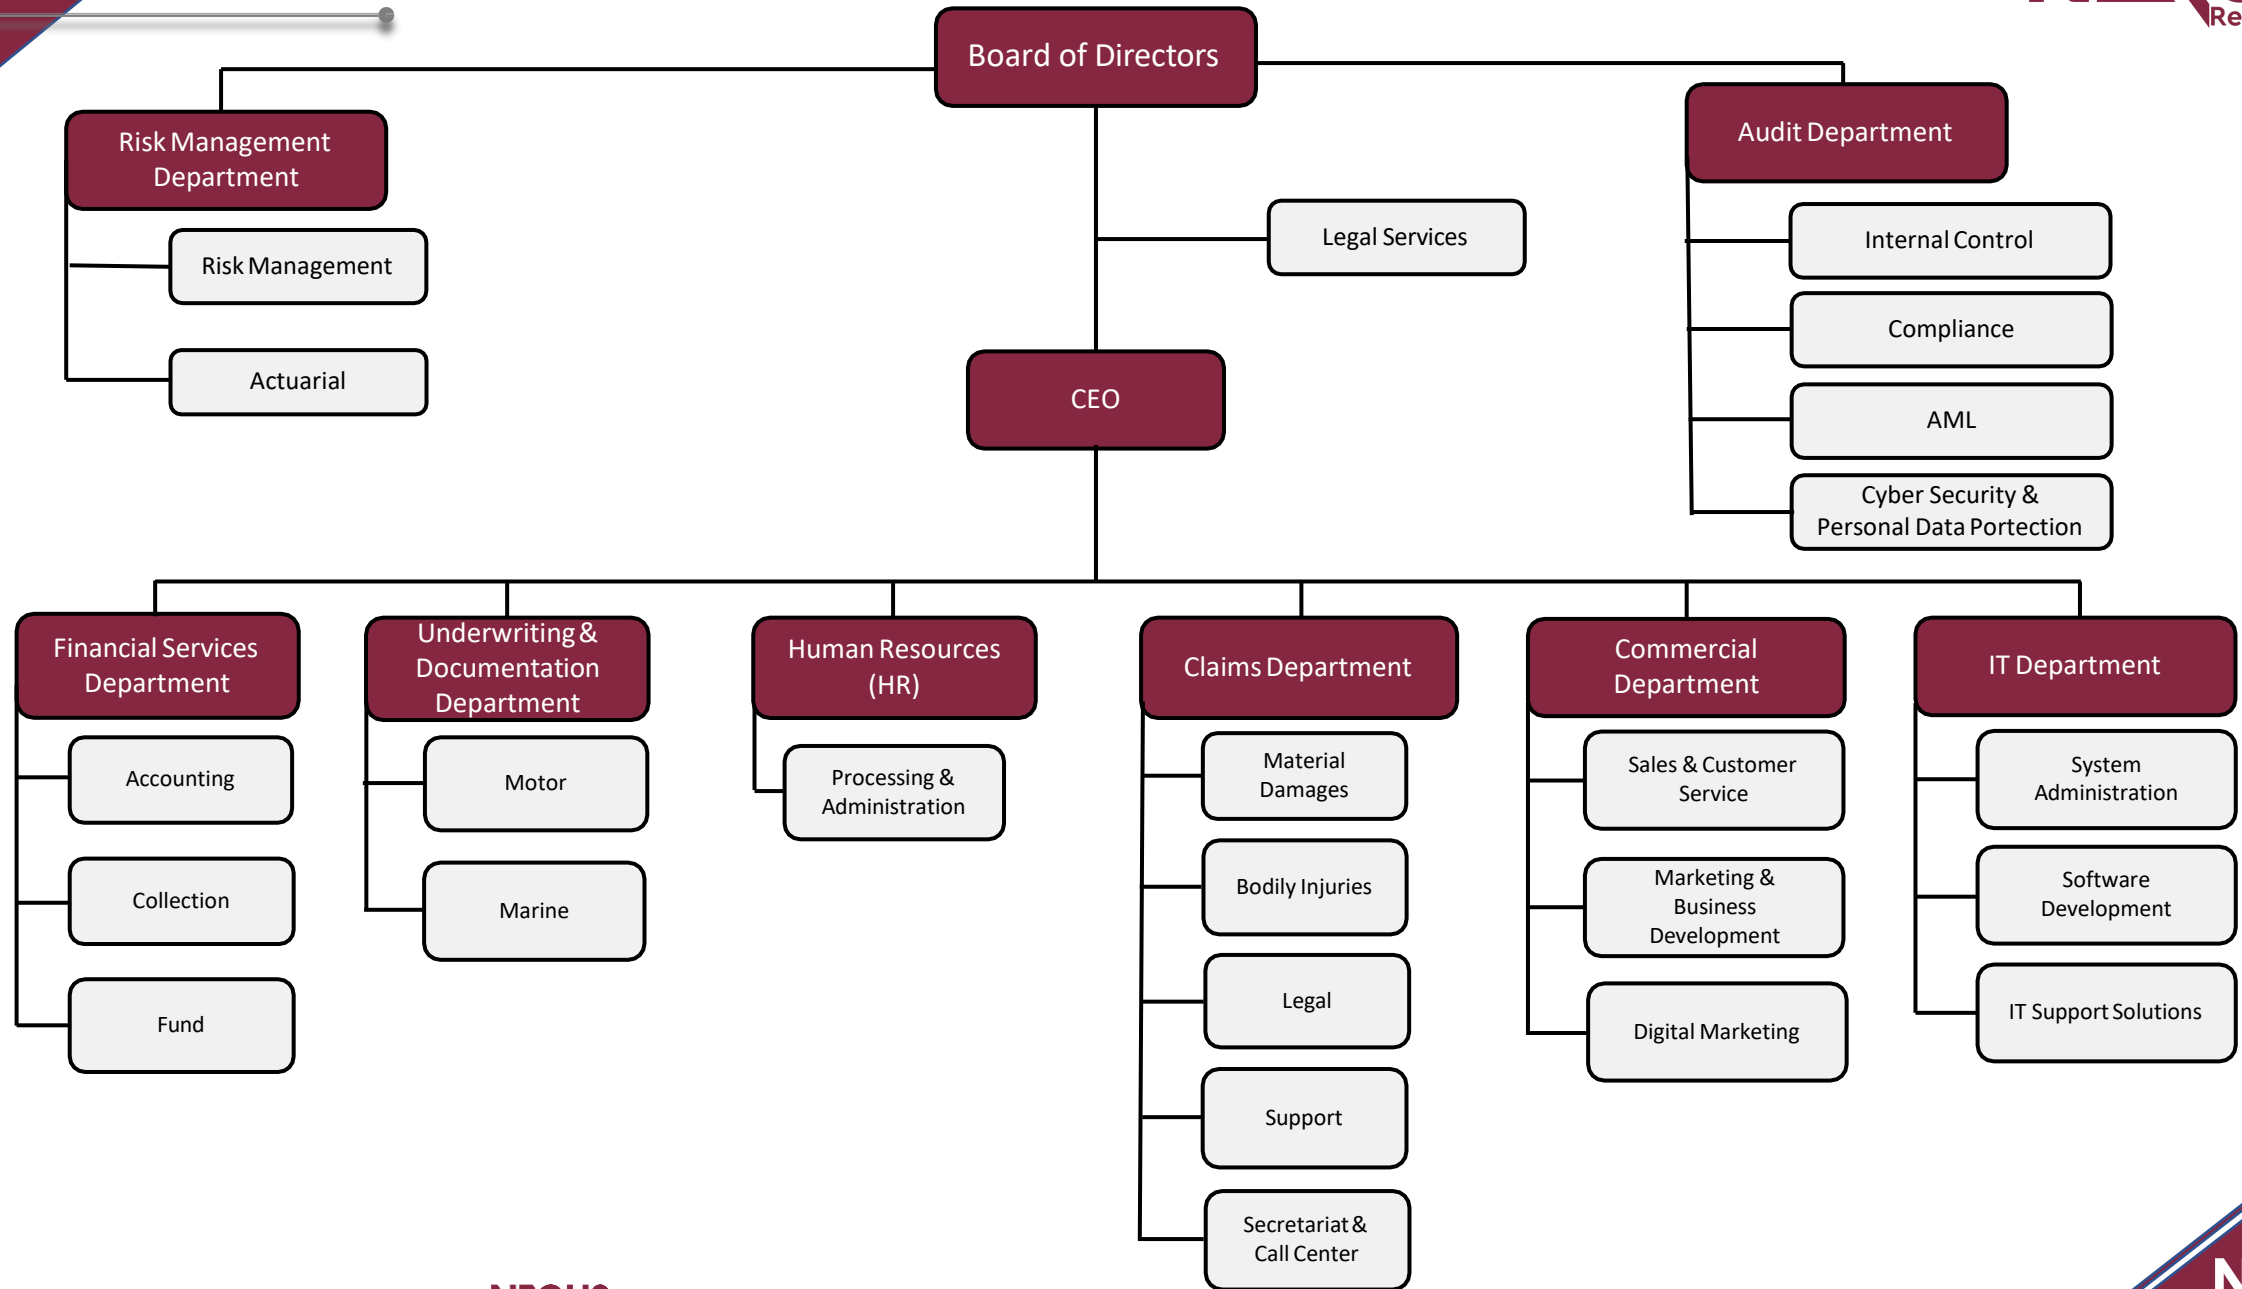

Our Department consists of developers who have successfully built an underwriting system (i.e. an agency system), as well as a claims management system (AURORA), covering a wide range of insurance services and creating statistics and business intelligence. Flexible management methodology (Agile Software Development (ASD)) of all projects.

The software system is developed with modern and constantly evolving tools, connecting all the information-data that exist in all our systems. All of this is achieved through a thorough procedure of thinking, defining, designing, programming, documenting, testing, and debugging.

Our software systems are developed through writing and maintaining the source code, including at the same time research, development, reuse, redesign, maintenance or other activities that result in continuous development.
